Mission and Vision

Our work at the Museum Europäischer Kulturen – Staatliche Museen zu Berlin (Museum of European Cultures – National Museums in Berlin; MEK) is concerned with the lifeworlds and intertwined cultures of Europe from the 18th century through to the present day. In our collecting and exhibiting, we address not just current social and cultural processes but also highlight historical and global connections. Through this, we seek to foster a broader understanding of our shared European history and culture, in all its diversity.

We promote dialogue

At the MEK in Berlin-Dahlem, we provide a forum for public dialogue and a home for research, conservation, education and outreach. Our working methods are participative, cosmopolitan, forward-looking and sustainable. Original everyday objects and cultural forms of expression from Europe are the indispensable foundations of our activities.

We work collectively

Our work is aimed at a diverse society made up of all kinds of people and social groups. We place great value on incorporating the unique perspectives and insights of the people we work with. Furthermore, we maintain productive collaborations with other museums, cultural institutions and universities in Berlin, Germany, and right across Europe.

We take a stance

Throughout history, museums have contributed to the marginalisation of different groups of people. We are conscious of this historical shortcoming and the responsibility this brings with it. We actively oppose all forms of racism and discrimination in our team and in the public spaces of the MEK, and treat all people with respect and dignity. We welcome them to our museum, where they can experience culture and history, examine lifeworlds, take a breath and feel at home.
